

Outdoor Food Stands

An outdoor food stand permit is required for vendors who sell packaged food that is not perishable (meat, dairy products, eggs, etc.) or fresh produce on premises other than licensed farmer's market locations.

Examples of outdoor food stands include trucks or stands selling fresh produce in the parking lot of a local business. The vendor must have permission from the property owner to sell products on that property.

No food processing is allowed at an outdoor food stand.

Vendors who do not need a permit include:

- home delivery
- conveyances
- farmers selling their own fruits and vegetable on their property
- non-profit organizations that sell products occasionally
