On Friday September 13th, Hillview recognized and honored Eagle Scout Reed Johnson who completed his project at the Hillview Cemetery. Over the past year, Reed with the help of his family, some fellow scouts and community businesses, cleaned up and did some major improvements to the long time cemetery, otherwise know that Potter’s Field” now known as Hillview Cemetery.

Reed’s accomplishments:

- Assisted with the installation of the new “scatter garden” within the existing cemetery”
- Straightened the falling down fence surrounding the entire cemetery
- Spray painted a non rust metallic silver paint on the rusted fence giving it a “brand new” effect
- Took many broken and split headstones that were non-repairable and had them replaced with the help of monetary donations from local residents and the stones donated by La Crosse monument
- Took many broken and split headstones and repaired them as best as possible
- designed a new sign with each number listing the name of the person buried along with a map of the cemetery. You are now able to locate the headstone number on the map to allow visitors to easily find their loved one within the cemetery. The sign was printed by Sign Pro at cost.
- Reed put great effort into a project not many high school kids would even consider doing. He took initiative to make his ideas happen and found the resources he needed to reach his goals.

Congratulations Reed and Best of Luck to you in your future endeavors. Your accomplishments have influenced more people in our community than you realize and will continue to do so for years to come.
